2009 Fall Sporting Clays

The Iowa DNR has installed a new, state-of-the art 10 station sporting clays course at the Olofson Shooting Range at Big Creek State Park near Polk City. Sporting clays (also know as 'golf with a shotgun') is the fastest growing clay target sport and great practice for wing-shooters. The course is laid out over 40 acres of prairie and timber to simulate hunting conditions. A variety of targets are presented to simulate field-shooting situations including settling ducks, flushing pheasants, springing teal and bounding rabbits. Shooters may walk around the ~1 mile loop of stations or may bring their own golf cart or UTV. Target presentations will be changed frequently over the fall shooting season to keep the course fun and challenging for shooters of all abilities!
